Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Onlooker, Vol. 2: A Literary Journal of Independent Critical Opinion on Public Affairs; June, 1922 The editor of The Onlooker must crave the indulgence of his subscribers. The whole International situation is a kaleidoscope, and it is a time for short views. A journal like The Onlooker, devoted to serious and fundamental things, must take its chances. Mere gossip comment and a rehashing of the current news is of no great value. It is better for the thinker to take his time and patiently elaborate his thought. He may prove wrong in his conclusions, but, at any rate, he will go down in the deeper waters The utterly senseless printers strike which has already cost the Typographical Union quite a million dollars has made it exceedingly hard both for author and publisher. The Master-Printers had no option but to deny demands that could only have resulted in the public s refusal to pay preposterous charges for printing. It would seem because of the lavish expenditure of funds, as though the strike in Toronto was intended as a sort of test of strength. If this surmise be correct, the Typographical Union is beaten. What the ill-advised labor leaders fail to realize is that the public cannot be coerced into buying, and that both masters and men are in the grip of a situation which can only be ameliorated by getting costs down to the point where goods can be freely moved. The Onlooker must continue to appear in the present chaos at irregular intervals. It has gone deeply and flown far. Were the editor to consult his own ease and his own pocket he would...
